

Physical / Offline Phishing Vectors

These are attacks that occur in the real world rather than online. Attackers use physical methods to trick people into revealing sensitive information, installing malware, or granting access to secure areas. They exploit human trust, curiosity, and routine behaviors, making vigilance, verification, and proper security protocols just as important as digital defenses.